30 Something

Ten years ago, it was cool college parties, flirt-marathons, and drinking competitions that ruled Martin & Lars' life.

Today, Lars is a successful attorney and together with his girlfriend Dani lives a really happy life... but also a very predictable one. Martin on the other hand had skipped his final exam years ago to join the new market boom, and ended up losing everything he owned - including his girlfriend.

Frustrated, Martin returns to Berlin with the intention of finishing his college degree. His friend Lars is excited about them both reliving their wild college days. Throughout the past few months Lars has been tortured by the decision to marry

Dani or not... he's tormented by the possibility there's much more life out there waiting for him.

Being a good friend, he gives Martin financial help and lets him move into his apartment. It's not long before their pad is flowing with beautiful girls, making Lars again feel like he's king of the world. Martin, though, is having a hard time not letting the partying life interfere with his studying - especially with his major crush on their gorgeous neighbor Anna diverting his attention.

When Dani eventually starts to withdraw from Lars and Anna finally gets fed up with Martin's behavior, both men realize that they've got some heavy decisions to make...
