

Romantic Comedy

Bad Girls

Bad Girls

Charlotte in her mid-forties, very rich, has an enviable social standing and is married to the perfect man - Thomas von Ernst, the director of a private bank. She seems to have the perfect life... until the one fateful day Charlotte and her car are hijacked from the vicinity of her husband's bank. Also a hostage in the stolen car is Sophie, the exact opposite of Charlotte. She is young, incredibly sexy, pretty naïve and very, very pregnant.

Somehow the brilliant plan of the bank robbers Max and Felix falls apart. Instead of loads of cash, they have two rebellious hostages in the car - and no money at all. However, when they check the women's purses, they discover something which perks up their interest... both are carrying a picture of Thomas. Now they are both thinking ransom money.

But with the two women constantly at each other's throats, the hostage takers find themselves on a real horror trip. Then, when the second ransom transfer fails, it becomes obvious to the two that Thomas would rather keep the money than save his two women. Max and Felix have no choice except to let the girls go. Sophie and Charlotte head straight to Thomas, only to find the one's husband and the other's lover in a more than friendly embrace with his secretary.

Now the girls join forces and plan their revenge. It isn't at all difficult to convince Max and Felix to help them. Together, the four move in to Charlotte's cosy summer house and wind up doing a whole lot more than planning revenge. Max falls heavily for Charlotte and the two become extremely close. Felix is even considering going straight and applying for a real job.

Then Thomas unexpectedly shows up at the house. Nobody could have possibly guessed that it was here that he had hidden the 3 million in ransom money. It appears that Charlotte now moves back to the side of her husband, but looks can be deceiving... and the tables are soon again turned.

Bad Girls

Romantic Comedy

Movie, 1 x 90'

Directed by Thomas Nennstiel

Starring Simone Thomalla, Lisa Maria Potthoff, David Rott, Max Tidof, Ralph Herforth

Produced by Zero Film GmbH for Sat.1 in association with SevenOne International