Deadly Campus

The lawyer Anna receives a startling phone call from her new business partner Philip: Maya, a student at an elite university, claims that during the welcoming party thrown for first semester students, an unknown person had drugged her drink and then sexually abused her. Anna contacts the young woman, but quickly doubts the promiscuous girl's credibility and immediately rejects the case.

Suddenly another girl disappears. Concerned that her judgment was in error, Anna begins to investigate what is happening on the campus. She discovers that a group of male students is using the first semester welcoming party as a hunting ground for unsuspecting female victims, sedating and then taking advantage of them. But at this year's party something unexpected goes wrong - the drugs have only a short effect and the girl awakens in the midst of their sexual assault.

Panicked by the possibility that she can identify them, the young men decide to lock her in the basement.

Anna is sure that those responsible are friends of the charismatic Tom, but she cannot prove it. She must find the missing student soon, because each passing minute means less of a chance that she will be found alive. Anna is the only one that can save her, but nobody is willing to take her accusations against the school's best students seriously...

Then suddenly Anna's entire world is thrown into chaos - she herself is sexually harassed by one of the suspects, and kills him while fighting for her life! She is now not at all sure what to believe - has she actually just become a murderer?
