More than Words

Make-up, beauty treatments and mini-skirts?

Cabinetmaker Katherina doesn't go that route. She is who she is - a tough talking girl who likes to show the "stronger" sex who's really in charge. But when fate brings a valuable piece of art to her shop for restoration, and the charismatic expert Jakob to do the work, it's not just Katherina's professional life that's thrown into chaos. She'd never in a million years be able to admit it, but as soon as she laid eyes on Jakob, it was love at first sight.

The only problem is that the visiting expert only has eyes for Katherina's pretty friend Marie. Marie isn't nearly as clever and confident as Katherina, so she asks her for help. Katherina begins writing love letters to Jakob under Marie's name, pouring out her own heart, but it isn't long before Jakob discovers the lie. At first terribly disappointed that the letters were not really from Marie, Katherina's passionate words soon point Jakob in a different direction...
