The Cursed Treasure

The Cursed Treasure

The ambitious archaeologist Jana Voss has finally decided where to settle down with her daughter Klara - in her old hometown, an island in the Baltic Sea where she's also found a new job. Although they are welcomed warmly by Jana's new boss Dirk Petersen, her colleague Henning Braderup makes no secret of his strong objections...

But the discomfort of Braderup's attitude is nothing compared to what comes next. When the family of two arrive at their house, they are dismayed to find that the pipes had been sabotaged and the entire place is flooded! Filled with frustration and despair, Jana and Klara are forced to find refuge with Jana's hostile sister Birte and her husband Eike.

As if all this wasn't enough, on that very same day Jana witnesses the disastrous plane crash that tragically takes the life of Dirk Petersen... a crash that's being investigated by Jana's old flame Falk Jensen. Dirk had just told Jana about a sensational discovery he made that was locked securely away in his safe, so it's to the safe the two go in the search for clues. After managing to open it, Jana and Falk are shocked to find a medieval treasure map from a legendary Danish king, a discovery they decide to keep secret... even from Henning.

However, when Falk's belief that Dirk's death was no accident becomes a brutal fact, everyone is under suspicion...
