The Enemy in my Bed

The Enemy in my Bed

Although it might first appear that Susanne and Christian are the perfect couple, despite his wealth and his obvious love for her, Susanne lives in a nightmarish reality defined by fear...

Christian's possessive need to control every move that she makes has left her a nervous wreck. The one time Susanne did attempt to leave her violent husband, she anxiously feared for her life. With her very survival at stake, Susanne sees only one way to flee from her horrifying marriage - to fake her own suicide.

It's during a luxury cruise that Susanne puts her desperate plan into effect. In the midst of stormy seas, she is able to make it appear that she has jumped overboard. With the ship being battered by huge waves, none aboard have any doubts that Susanne has drowned. After managing to leave her hiding place and the ship without being recognized, Susanne is thrilled to finally be facing a new life away from the horror of her marriage with Christian.

Taking the job of a fieldworker, Susanne begins renovating the boat of her dead father and recaptures a sense of freedom she hasn't known for a long time. It's not long before another man enters her life: Michael, with whom she quickly falls in love. But Michael is not everything he seems to be. By the time Susanne learns his true identity, it's already too late. The nightmare of her past has returned - and the final struggle to survive now begins...
