Anna

Anna

She could have the whole world, if she could only rise to the challenge. Anna is full of dreams and ideas, but far too often her shyness is an obstacle. Will she be able to overcome it one day?

Anna could have it all. With her talent, her ability for hard work and her persistence, she would be welcome everywhere - even in the stylish advertising agency Broda & Broda, where Anna has always dreamt of working. But there is an obstacle that prevents her from fulfilling her ambitions: Anna is terribly shy, and faced with strangers or people who really matter to her, she simply cannot say a word. Which makes every job interview a disaster, and explains why she is still helping out her mother Susanne in the family restaurant, the Golden Angel. Anna's strict stepfather is always picking on her, and her spoiled half-sister Katja makes fun of her all the time.

When Anna meets the junior partner Jonas, who has just returned from America, she realizes she only wants one thing: to be close to him. But Katja is one step ahead of her. By passing off one of Anna's ideas as her own, Katja worms her way into the advertising agency. Without the creative input from her sister, though, Katja will not keep her job for long. Anna manages to get a temporary job at the agency. Now she is forced to watch Katja steal her ideas and impress everyone - even Jonas. Anna herself continues to be regarded as mousy and lacking any talent...

Apart from her unrequited love for Jonas, Anna also has other things on her mind. The Broda & Broda agency is in the grips of a power struggle. Soon she and Katja are both caught up in it. Jonas, his brother Gerrit and their parents Robert and Natascha continue their family conflicts at work.

But Anna refuses to let all this discourage her, sensing that she will manage one day to bring the truth to light and demonstrate her genuine talent. The day will come when Jonas realizes that she and only she is the right girl for him...
