The Comedy-Trap

The Comedy-Trap

In this offbeat comedy show, four popular comedians are charged with the task of pulling off the most bizarre, brazen and unbelievable practical jokes.

Taken from a mix of regular and guest comedians, each of them is given an enormously tricky objective by the host. This could be anything from transforming into Prince Charles and Camilla to fool an eager waitress or luring oblivious tourists into a bizarre celebrity home. Their fun-filled challenge is to retain their composure while they set up deeply elaborate traps and surprising twists-and-turns to take their victims for the proverbial ride. In every episode, the well-known comedians have to fill new and unexpected roles, and people will be glued to their sets to see whether they will be recognized and unmasked. In order to fool and baffle everyday people and unsuspecting celebrities, they transform themselves into frail elderly people or seemingly harmless tour guides with the help of intricate costumes and flawless disguises. Disguises such as the eccentric Hollywood director who is making the shoot of a short travel segment living hell for a prominent high-society couple. The unsuspecting twosome has to deal with every possible disaster on the set as the director becomes more and more enraged, until the ruse is exposed, turning their mounting disbelief and irritation into riotous laughter. With zany, extravagant exploits and clever tricks they vie for the audience's favor, who in the end must decide which of the four has pulled off the best prank, convinced with the best costume, or even failed in their endeavour. Which fantastic stunt was the funniest... or meanest, and which was the most spectacular? The verdict of the home audience determines which of the comedians is crowned the winner - and which of them falls into The Comedy-Trap.
